By his defeat in tennis for the English championship title by Wilding of New Zealand, the American, McLoughlin, gets the "seansoning" that he needs. He is young yet and can stand a few reverses. But all must admit, even the Britishers, that he has been putting up a marvellous exhibition of tennis play ing. At the same time we Americans are forced to admit that we do not know it all about tennis, any more than we do about golf, the latter admission being forced by the defeat of Schmidt and Stucklen for the amateur golf championship of France yesterday. In fact outside of professional track athletics, the United States has to fight to maintain its own.
